Author Bio

(Short):

Warren Stribling's passion for writing can be traced back to his first series of short stories he wrote for his Junior High School classmates at 12 and 13 and a novella he wrote for his mother at 17. As a writer he specializes in creative and thought-provoking material with a touch of humor.

(Long):

As a self-described painter of words, Warren Stribling is an author who is committed to clever, thought-provoking material that can leave the reader with a smile and a tear. He has spent his life since early adolescence writing stories and chasing experiences to inspire and create more stories. He continues to write poetry and short stories, while currently working on his first novel and maintaining his professional life as a writer to add better content for the online world.

As a former Airman, Legionnaire, and English teacher, Warren has developed a unique perspective when it comes to capturing a story. Influenced by some of the greats from American, French, and Russian literature, he aspires to actualize his own voice in the nature of the written word.
